

OWEN R. LOVEJOY URGES SUPPORT OF RESOLUTION PROPOSING CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT TO FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, urges in the current issue of the American Child, just published, the adoption of a constitutional amendment empowering Congress to limit or prohibit the labor of children under sixteen and pledges his support to the McCormick Senate resolution, which proposes such an amendment.

Mr. Lovejoy speaks of the two successive federal laws which were declared unconstitutional, and says: "It has been published to the world that the United States of America cannot protect its children in industry. There have been two attempts and two failures, leaving little likelihood of effective action by reliance on existing constitutional powers. Moreover, any action would necessarily be indirect, for never, under the present Constitution, has there been any possibility of federal legislation dealing with child labor as child labor."

"A nation that cannot protect its own children from industrial exploitation should be ashamed of itself. It should at least have the power to do so, even if it uses the power only to make up the deficiencies of state action and to set up a minimum standard of national decency which no state shall be allowed to abrogate."

"This power will give us respect in the eyes of our fellow nations, and to our citizens at home it will give confidence that children actually can and will be protected in whatever part of the country they may live. It is a form of democratic insurance. There is no democracy in permitting backward localities to use up childhood. We might as well speak of a democracy of robbery, of murder."

The laws of twenty-eight states, in one respect or another, are below the very reasonable standards fixed by the two federal acts. Now that the second federal act has been declared invalid, Georgia dependent children 12 years of age may be worked ten hours a day, and children 14-17 all night long. In North Carolina children 12 may be worked 11 hours a day during school vacations, and children of 14 the same long work day the entire year. Important mining states fall below the sixteen-year age limit for employment in mines. Other shortcomings of existing state laws could be mentioned. Reports coming in indicate that a host of children are now going to work who would have been kept out of child labor if the federal act had remained in force.

Federal protection must be restored to these boys and girls. We need to bear in mind, not only that some states have so far failed to measure up to the federal standards, but that there is no telling when, if left to themselves, some states that have as high or higher standards, will slip back. It may turn out that a constitutional amendment will be all the federal protection necessary; or in other words, that the states, knowing that Congress can do the job, will themselves give full protection to America's children. If they do, legislation by Congress will not be needed; but in any case, Congress should have the power to act."

"I shall refuse to pay for attendance," said the irate tourist who had been staying at an old-fashioned country hotel and who had just been presented with his bill. "Why, the bells in the rooms are a perfect disgrace; not one of them would ring.

Everything I wanted I had to fetch myself. I must have spent hours tugging at those bell-pulls."

"It is true we have charged for attendance," said the smiling proprietor, "but we have charged you nothing for your physical culture course."

"Physical culture course?" exclaimed the tourist, in surprise. "I don't know what you mean."

"The daily use of our dumb-bells" was the cool retort.

ERROR HARD TO ERADICATE

Even Those Who Know Better Are Unwilling to Obey This Particular Grammatical Law.

Discussing Doctor Sapir's book on language, A. L. Kroehler says in the Idiot that we all tend to say "Who did you see?" and shows why, in spite of its "incorrectness" we all at times slip into it. "Whom has become isolated, the only word of its class, the only emphatic and interrogative word normally at the head of its sentence, that retains the objective ending. Unconsciously, the "m" makes us uncomfortable. The rules teach it, but the rules are no longer living, they are in conflict with the irrational but psychologically valid drift of modern English, and we feel happier with who than with whom in our mouths. The uneducated abandon themselves unrestrainedly. The sophisticated and timid vacillate between the disconcert of breaking with the authority of tradition and the irritation of a usage that has slipped into silent contradiction with the real forces that make English a living tongue. But all alike we edge ever farther away from the whom because of the 'hesitation valves' which are hooking themselves to it."

The Prophylactic Sardine.

Rejoicing in the fact that yellow fever will soon disappear from South America, the "Petit Parisien" invokes thanks to the sardines.

It is known that the fever is communicated by the bite of a mosquito that lives in the swamps.

Now it has been noticed that a species of sardine, the shatta gets easily acclimated in fresh water and, what is more, it manifests a very marked predilection for the larvae of mosquitoes.

One can easily guess the sequel. The shattas, noted in great numbers, are thrown into the marshes, where they destroy the larvae. No more mosquitoes, no more fever.

Thus the sardine takes its place among the benefactors of humanity!

Shop Crafts Policy Committee Called to Chicago; Strike May Be Settled.

RAIL EXECUTIVES SAY NO

Government Will Not Enforce Injunction Too Drastically—Ending of the Anthracite Strike—Landslide for La Follette in Wisconsin—Greeks Whipped by Turks.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SETTLEMENT of the railway shopmen's strike may be at hand. Last week B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts, called their policy committee to meet in Chicago September 11, the day set for hearings on the motion to make permanent the sweeping injunction obtained by Attorney General Daugherty. There are 100 members of the committee, and some of them said freely that it was obvious that a settlement was in sight.

President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio was said to be working on a plan for separate agreements. On the other hand, various railway executives flatly denied that any movement was on foot looking to an agreement with the shopmen. Their chairman, T. DeWitt Cuyler, asserted the railroads already had won the strike, that on September 1 they had 300,000 shopmen at work, and are adding thousands daily to their shop forces.

Criticism of the unparalleled inclusiveness of the injunction issued by Judge Wilkerson was not confined to labor circles by any means, being shared by members of congress, many editors and other presumably unbiased persons. Probably taking note of this fact, the administration let it be known that the government had no intention of enforcing the injunction to the point of abridgment of free speech or otherwise invading the constitutional liberties of citizens. Attorney General Daugherty indicated that there would be no interference with labor meetings "held for lawful purposes," but that the government would step in if the strike meetings were for the purpose of "inciting riots" or other violation of the law. So far organized labor has practically ignored the restraining order, but the government agents, while keeping close watch on the proceedings, have done little in the way of attempting enforcement. Naturally, on Labor Day, the union leaders, from Tredegar Gompers down, took the opportunity to attack bitterly the action of the attorney general. Later the labor chiefs mapped out a plan of attack on the injunction, seeking counter-injunctions.

Talk of a general strike largely subsided during the week, for all but the more radical laborites recognized that such a thing, hitherto unknown in the United States, could not succeed. They probably realize, also, that the workers, no less than the rest of the population, would be deprived of most of the necessities and comforts of life by a general strike.

OPERATORS and miners in the anthracite fields accepted the terms proposed by Senators Pepper and Reed, and the strike was settled by an agreement which, like that in the bitaminous case, is almost a complete victory for the men. The old wage scale has been extended until August 31, 1923, both sides joined in recommending national legislation creating a separate anthracite coal commission, and the continuance of production after the extension date is to be upon such terms as the parties may agree upon in the light of the report of the commission.

The Senate by a vote of 40 to 7 passed the administration coal distribution and price control bill.

The grand jury at Marion, Ill., which is investigating the Herrin massacre, has indicted 39 persons so far, and more true bills are expected. President Parrington of the Illinois miners has announced that the union will stand back of every union man who is accused of participation in the murders, and already he has declared that all such are innocent. Interest of the American Legion has been aroused by the discovery that two of the murdered men were overseas veterans.

JOHN H. CLARKE of Ohio resigned as associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States, and George H. Sutherland, former senator from Utah, was appointed to fill the vacancy and confirmed by the senate. Justice Clarke gave slight reasons for his resignation except that he had reached the age for retirement. He was appointed by President Wilson in 1916 and had sometimes been criticized by conservatives because of his decidedly liberal tendencies. Mr. Sutherland, whose great legal ability is widely recognized, is classed as a liberal. He was born in England in 1862 and received his education in the schools of Utah and the University of Michigan. He is a close personal friend of President Harding.

RUNNING true to form, the Republicans of Wisconsin renominated United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in the primaries last Tuesday. No one with any knowledge of the situation expected they would do otherwise. However, "Bob's" majority was probably a surprise even to him, being well over 200,000 according to incomplete returns. It was a landslide carried with it the entire slate backed by La Follette, including Governor J. J. Blaine, who won by more than 170,000. Rev. W. A. Gunfield, college president and candidate of the Anti-Saloon league, was unable to detach from the senator's support many of the Republican drys although La Follette is openly wet. Then, too, the senator naturally received the votes of the large population of Teutonic origin. The one surprise of the day was the defeat of Congressman A. P. Nelson of the Superior district by H. H. Penney. Nelson is a prominent leader of the drys and his downfall was accomplished by a combination of the La Follette organization and the Association opposed to Prohibition.

The Democratic nominee for senator against La Follette is Mrs. Jessie J. Hoover of Oshkosh.

In the second Democratic senatorial primary in Mississippi, according to partial returns, former Senator James K. Vardaman was beaten by Hubert D. Stephens, former congressman. Woodrow Wilson, when informed of this, expressed his satisfaction, which will be shared by the American public generally.

is critical and British and American warships have arrived there to protect their nationals. There have been some bloody encounters between the opposing armies, but for the most part it appears the Greeks have retired, in considerable confusion, without putting up much of a fight. The Turkish leaders are said to be much superior to the Greek commanders. It was reported that General Tricoupi, recently made commander in chief of the Greek forces, was captured by the Kemalists.

The Greek morale, both in Smyrna and Athens, seemed to have been broken. Movements were said to have been started to compel King Constantine to abdicate and there were rumors that the cabinet was about to resign and that former Premier Venizelos would return to power. However, it was stated that the government would not consider the evacuation of Smyrna or the surrender of the Greek mandate in Thrace. Both of these things the Turks demand before they will talk of peace. The Kemalists, and the French who are friendly to them, blame Great Britain for its support of the Greeks and their claims. A rising of Turks on the south side of the Dardanelles has alarmed the British, who are concentrating on Gallipoli peninsula to check a possible march on Constantinople. Bulgaria has taken advantage of the situation by sending to Athens new demands concerning Thrace.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—To the Kentucky wilderness outpost commanded by Jerome Sanders, in the time immediately preceding the Revolution, comes a white boy fleeing a tribe of Shawnees by whom he had been captured and adopted as son of the chief, Kahtoo. He is given shelter and attention to the favorable attention of Dave Yandell, a leader among the settlers.

CHAPTER II.—The boy warns his new friends of the coming of a Shawnee war party. The fort is attacked and only saved by the timely appearance of a party of Virginians. The leader of these is slightly wounded, but in his dying moments recognizes the fugitive youth as his son.

CHAPTER III.—At Red Oak plantation on the James river, Virginia, Colonel Sanders, the boy's host, appears with a message for the settlers who are readying to fight the Indians. Erskine Dale is introduced to the bearish butler Barbara as her cousin, Erskine Dale.

CHAPTER IV.—Erskine meets two other cousins, Harry Dale and Hugh Wilbroughy.

CHAPTER V.—Dueling rapiers on a wall at Red Oak attract Erskine's attention. He takes his first fencing lesson, from Hugh Dave Yandell, at Williamsburg on business, visits Red Oak.

CHAPTER VI.—At the county fair at Williamsburg, Erskine meets a youth, Dave Grey, and there at once arises a dispute and quarrel between them. Grey, in liquor, insults Erskine and his father; for the moment all Indian, draws his knife. Yandell disarms him. Ashamed of his conduct in the affair with Grey, Red Oak leaves Red Oak that night, to return in the wilderness. Yandell, with Harry and Hugh, has been permitted to visit the Indians, fort, overhauls him. All the plantation the boy had left a note in which he gave the property, which is his as the son of Colonel Dale's older brother, to Barbara.

CHAPTER VII.—The party is met by three Shawnees, who bring news to Erskine (whose Indian name is White Arrow) that his foster father, Kahtoo, is dying and desires him to come to the tribe to be their chief. After a brief visit to the fort Erskine goes to the tribe. He finds there a white woman and her half-breed daughter, Early Morn, and saves the woman from death. He tells Kahtoo he is with the Americans against the British. An enemy, Crooked Lightning, overhears him.

CHAPTER VIII.—Kahtoo sends Erskine to a council where British agents meet Indian chiefs. Dave Grey is there, and the bitter feeling is intensified. Crooked Lightning denounces Erskine as a traitor and friend of the Americans. The youth escapes death by flight.

CHAPTER IX.—Reaching his tribe, Erskine finds his enemies have the upper hand. He and his party are pursued, wading only for the arrival of Crooked Lightning, to be burned at the stake. Early Morn releases him and he reaches Jerome Sanders' fort safely.

CHAPTER X.—The Revolution spreads. George Rogers Clark visits the fort. Erskine resists to John Clark's expedition to the Northwest. At Red Oak he finds Dave Grey apparently on more than friendly terms with Barbara.

CHAPTER XI.—Erskine and Grey engage in a duel with rapiers, though the former knows nothing of fencing. The fight is stopped by Colonel Dale.

CHAPTER XII.—Barbara and Erskine arrive at a sort of mutual understanding, though the boy has little hope of winning her love.

CHAPTER XIII

With the head of that column of stalwart backwoodsmen went Dave Yandell and Erskine Dale. A hunting party of four Shawnees heard their coming through the woods and, tying like snakes in the undergrowth, peered out and saw them pass. Then they rose, and Crooked Lightning looked at Black Wolf and, with a grant of angry satisfaction led the way homeward. And to the village they bore the news that White Arrow had made good his word and, side by side with the big chief of the Long Knives, was leading a war party against his tribe and kinsmen. And Early Morn carried the news to her mother, who lay sick in a wigwam.

The march went swiftly, and Kaskaskia fell. Suddenly a cordon of hunters surrounded the little town. The rest stole to the walls of the fort. Lights flickered from within, the sounds of cloths and dancing feet came through crevices and window. Clark's tall figure stood noiselessly into the great hall, where the Creoles were making merry and leaned silently with folded arms against the doorpost, looking on at the revels with a grave smile. The light from the torches tickled across his face, and an Indian lying on the floor sprang to his feet with a curling war-whoop. Women screamed and men rushed toward the door. The stranger stood motionless and his grin smile was unchanged.

"Dance on!" he commanded courteously, "but remember," he added sternly, "you dance under Virginia and not Great Britain!"

There was a great noise behind him. Men dashed into the fort, and Rocheblave and his others were prisoners. By daylight Clark had the town disarmed. The French, Clark said next day, could take the oath of allegiance to the republic, or depart with their families in peace. As for their church, he had nothing to do with any church save to protect it from insult. So that the people who had heard terrible stories of the wild woodsmen and who expected to be killed or made slaves, joyfully became Americans. They even gave Clark a volunteer company to march with him soon Cabot, and stray by the British—henceforth they would be friendly with the Americans. But Clark was not satisfied.

"I come as a warrior," he said haughtily; "I shall be a friend to the friendly. If you choose war I shall send so many warriors from the Thirteen Colonies that your land shall be darkened and you shall hear no sounds but that of the birds who live on blood." And then he handed two belts of peace and war, and they eagerly took the belt of peace. The treaty followed next day and Clark insisted that two of the prisoners should be put to death; and as the two selected came forward Erskine saw Black Wolf was one. He whispered with Clark and Kahtoo, and Crooked Lightning saw the big chief with his hand on Erskine's shoulder and heard him forgive the two and bid them to depart. And thus peace was won.

Straightway old Kahtoo pushed through the warriors and, plucking the blade by the sleeve, pointed to Erskine.

"That is my son," he said, "and I want him to go home with me."

"He shall go," said Clark quickly,

"but he shall return, whenever it pleases him to me."

And so Erskine went forth one morning at dawn, and his coming into the Shawnee camp was like the coming of a king. Early Morn greeted him with glowing eyes, his foster-mother brought him food, looking proudly upon him, and old Kahtoo surrounded his braves around the council-pole, while the prophet and Crooked Lightning waited in their tents.

"My son spoke words of truth," he proclaimed sonorously. "He warned us against the king over the waters and told us to make friends with the Americans. We did not heed his words, and so we brought the great chief of the Long Knives, who stood without fear among warriors more numerous than leaves and spoke the same words to all. We are friends of the Long Knives. My son is the true prophet. Bring out the false one and Crooked Lightning and Black Wolf, whose life my son avenged—though the two were enemies. My son shall do with them as he pleases."

Many young braves sprang willingly forward and the three were haled before Erskine. Old Kahtoo waved his hand toward them and sat down. Erskine rose and fixed his eyes sternly on the cowering prophet:

"He shall go forth from the village and shall never return. For his words were mischievous, he does foolish things, and his drumming frightens the game. He is a false prophet and he must go." He turned to Crooked Lightning:

"The Indians have made peace with the Long Knives and White Arrow would make peace with any Indian, though an enemy. Crooked Lightning shall go or stay, as he pleases. Black Wolf shall stay, for the tribe will need him as hunter and a warrior against the English foes of the Long Knives. White Arrow does not ask another to spare an enemy's life and then take it away himself."

The braves grunted approval. Black Wolf and Crooked Lightning averted their faces and the prophet stumbled ungracefully away. Again old Kahtoo proclaimed sonorously, "It is well!" and went back with Erskine to his tent. There he sank wearily on a buffalo-skin and plumped with the boy to stay with them as chief in his stead. He was very old, and now that peace was made with the Long Knives he was willing to die. If Erskine would but give his promise, he would never rise again from where he lay.

Erskine shook his head and the old man sorrowfully turned his face. And yet Erskine lingered on and on at the village. Of the white woman he had learned little other than that she had been bought from another tribe and adopted by old Kahtoo; but it was plain that since the threatened burning of her she had been held in high respect by the whole tribe. He began to wonder about her and whether she might not wish to go back to her own people. He had never talked with her, but he never moved about the camp that he did not feel her eyes upon him. And Early Morn's big soft eyes, too, never seemed to leave him. She brought him food, she sat at the door of his tent, she followed him about the village and bore herself openly as his slave. At last old Kahtoo, who would not give up his great hope, pleaded with him to marry her, and while he was talking the girl stood at the door of the tent and interrupted them. Her mother's eyes were growing dim, she said. Her mother wanted to talk with White Arrow and look upon his face before her sight should altogether pass. Nor could Erskine know that the white woman wanted to look into the eyes of the man she hoped would become her daughter's husband, but Kahtoo did, and he bade Erskine go.

His foster mother, coming upon the scene, scolded, but Erskine rose and went to the white woman's tent. She sat just inside the opening, with a blanket across the lower half of her face, nor did she look at him. Instead she pilled him with questions, and listened eagerly to his every word, and drew from him every detail of his life as far back as he could remember.

Next morning he stood in the center of their ringed warriors with the tasseled shirts of his ridefum mous behind him, released the captive chiefs and handed them the bloody war-belt.

"I scorn your hostility and trenchery. You deserve death, but you shall leave in safety. In three days I shall begin war on you. If you Indians do not want your women and children killed—stop killing ours. We shall see who can make that war last the most bloody. While you have been in my camp you have had food and firewater, but now that I have finished you must depart speedily."

The captive chief spoke and so did old Kahtoo, with his eyes fixed sadly but proudly on his adopted son. They had listened to bad birds and been fed

"What is your name?"

"Erskine Dale."

Without a word she turned back into her tent.

At dusk Erskine stood by the river's bank, with his eyes lifted to a rising moon and his thoughts with Barbara on the bank of the James. Behind him he heard a rustle and, turning, he saw the girl, her breast throbbed and her eyes burning with a light he had never seen before.

"Black Wolf will kill you," she whispered.

"Black Wolf wants Early Morn and he knows that Early Morn will care for her."

With a final glance at the girl he turned and walked back to his tent.

He slept fitfully, but when he awoke he found the girl beside him, her face close to his, her body pressed against his.

Intolerance

Were the history of intolerance written in picture, the effect upon the mind of the person who studied this picture would be fearful to contemplate. The heart of intolerance is the desire that has come down thru the ages to subject the will of free-thinkers to the will of a single tyrant or a powerful oligarchy.

That picture would be a composite one. One of its characteristics is Dogmatism. Dogmatism speaks with absolute authority and possesses all knowledge and all learning. All inventive genius that has found its way into the world is wrong if it disagrees with the opinion of Dogmatism. I am the Great I AM.

Another characteristic of the picture is Orthodoxy, which has sworn vengeance upon any new idea or new thought that comes into the world. Any discovery of a new method, or an improvement over the old, is a sin against God and the Divine Plan.

Another characteristic of the picture is Ignorance. Ignorance is illogical, superstitious and cowardly. It cannot reason in straight lines. It starts an argument on a false premise and thinks the point is proven.

The next characteristic is Selfishness. Selfishness will never own its chief quality. It considers itself liberal, brotherly, a promoter of good, and a disciple of the Father.

Wars have been fought and blood shed over this picture of Intolerance. Religion has had its set-backs and churches split in twain because of this picture. In fact, the picture has wrought such havoc in the minds of the people down thru the ages as to cause them to undertake to obliterate it from the face of the earth. But it still shows itself. Here is a religious cult that faithfully, the inconsistently, consigns all other religious cults to eternal hell-fire. There is a political body that has the gall to claim that only followers of that particular political faith can be right. And in it all, and thru it all, they are trying to fortify their positions by the teachings and the example of Jesus Christ—the greatest believer in a universal brotherhood that ever lived. He was practically void of creed and spent much of his ministry in this world breaking down the formalities that were undermining the religion of the living God. Are we intolerant? If we think we are not, let us examine our attitude toward people who do not think as we do!

The Demand for Education

We are now entering upon the season for school enthusiasm. The atmosphere of the month of September has a tinge of autumn, with its falling leaves and withering vegetation, yet it is buoyant with the spirit of ambitious youth.

September is the month when millions of young men and women, boys and girls, and little tots enter school. They are working in a quarry, as it were, preparing the material for building the highways of life. Getting ready for school is a time of excitement. The six-year-old child jumps with glee at the thought of a bright new book, a clean slate, and a red apple, that are to be carried to school during the month of September.

School life has not yet become monotonous; everything is fresh and new and joy is unbounded.

The greatest system every inaugurated in America is the system of free education. The greatest improvement on that system is the law compelling parents to send their children to school. When we cease to support the public and private educational institutions of our land, and to encourage them in every possible way, when we cease to make their continuance a part of our life's program, we open the way for the disintegration of the foundation of our own democracy. The schools and colleges of every kind and description are bursting their walls with students. There is not a creditable school in the country that is not straining its maximum capacity to care for the students who are rushing in. It is a rather interesting fact that as times become prosperous and wages and salaries rise, interest in school lags; while, on the other hand, when a depression occurs, it brings to our colleges great crowds of students. During a period of depression or industrial unrest it is good time for young people to prepare for a period of prosperity. It is also a sign of the stability of our national life. If people become anarchistic and revolutionary during periods of depression, serious will be the consequences; but when young people turn to institutions of learning during the periods of their idleness, they are fortifying themselves and the nation against dissatisfaction.

Let us support the educational institutions of America.

THE AMERICAN

Who is the true American? Not he who wears his lungs out with a blustering brag. ### Art Bolsheviks to the Incompetent Proletariat of Paint and Brush

By CHARLES VEZIN, American Artist and Critic.

The Russian Bolsheviks "had a cinch" when they started. It is easy to convert people to what they like to believe and what it is to their interest to believe. So all they had to say to the peasants—and they make up the mass of Russia—was: "The land is yours."

So the art Bolsheviks say to the ignorant and the incompetent of paint, to the proletarian of the brush: "The walls of the exhibition rooms are yours." If their picture reaches the "firing line" of the National Academy or the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts or Carnegie Institute and is "fired," they tell him: "Your picture is too good for them."

How many generations will it take of bonny harvests to bring back the Russian people to their physical constitutions? How many generations of ethical soundness will it take to repair the moral attrition of our youth? How many generations will it take to repair the esthetic Bolshevikism now being propagated in most of our art schools by "professional modernists"? It is this factor that makes discussion futile about merely a passing wave. It will be visited upon the third and fourth generations.

COUNCIL TO SUPPORT HEALTH ORDINANCE

Unanimous Decision

At the meeting of the City Council, Monday, September 11, it was unanimously decided that the Council would insist upon the rigid enforcement of the sanitary ordinance passed and approved, May 8, 1922.

This ordinance was published in The Citizen, August 31. Every doctor in Berea, except one, and he is out of town, has been interviewed on this subject and has expressed his hearty support to this ordinance.

The ordinance reads as follows:

It shall be unlawful for the owner or agent of any premises or real estate within the city of Berea, Ky., upon which a building is situated, and where no system of sewage disposal approved by the State Board of Health is provided or maintained to either let, lease, or permit the same to be occupied for residence purposes, or for business or other purposes, which necessitates the occupation of such building or premises by human being, unless every such building or premises shall be provided with adequate privy or water-closet equipment, constructed, equipped and maintained in a manner satisfactory to the State and County Board of Health.

Every dwelling or other structure within the city of Berea, Ky., which is not provided with a lawful privy or closet is hereby declared to be insanitary and dangerous to the public health when occupied, and it shall be the duty of the county health officer to post or cause to be posted in a conspicuous place upon dwelling or structure, whether it be occupied or unoccupied, a notice giving warning to the public that such dwelling or structure is insanitary. Each such notice so posted shall remain until the provisions of this section and the other provisions of the regulations governing health and sanitation shall have been fully complied with.

Any owner or agent violating any of the provisions of this section as to equipment, construction and maintenance of privies or closets shall be subject to a penalty of $10.00 nor more than $50.00 for each and every such offence, and each week's continuance of such violation shall constitute a separate and distinct offence.

Any person who shall remove, deface, or obstruct any notice or placard which is displayed or posted under the provisions of this section other than by express authority of the county health officer shall be subject to a penalty of not less than $10.00 nor more than $50.00.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

The first meeting of the Woman's Club for the year 1922-23 will be held at the home of Mrs. Edwards on Wednesday, September 20. A musical program will be rendered and every member is urged to come.

During the summer the Club has backed up some movements which it is hoped will in the future develop into real mediums of community service. At the Berea Fair the Health and Hygiene Committee held a very interesting and instructive Baby Show, not so much for beauty as for health. Quite a number of babies were examined, and there would have been a larger number had it not been for a misunderstanding of the time allotted for the examination. A lively interest was also taken by the children in the Health Poster Contest. Some excellent posters were displayed on the outside of the tent, many of them showing genuine originality and careful execution.

Mention should also be made of the very practical demonstration of the proper feeding of growing children, displayed by the Home Economics Committee under the efficient supervision of Miss Dizney. At the same time bulletins and pamphlets dealing with various phases of health were distributed to those who seemed interested. The work has large possibilities of accomplishing great good, and it is hoped and urged that some more adequate provision may soon be made for a permanent exhibition of this Home side of the Fair so that more people may profit by it.

Very dear to the hearts of the mothers of Berea is their Public School, and this summer the club women have shown their appreciation of it by retinting the interior walls of the school building, thereby insuring a greater measure of cleanliness, health and happiness for the teachers and pupils this coming year.

"GENUS FELIS"

My Sister, dost know the species of feminine persuasion belonging to the human family and generally designated as a cat? Her name is Legion and her dwelling place the uttermost parts of the earth. Her ways are harder and more hateful than those of the profiteer, for wherever she may be, she maketh some woman uncomfortable.

Even tho she doth not know the other woman, she cannot resist the temptation of belittling her in the eyes of her escort. Canst help but notice when thou art all dolled up in thy new georgette and a becoming hat and art out walking with the man, how she giveth thee the once-over? Hast thou observed that hard, cold look in her eyes, that elevating of eyebrows, that slight downward curve of her lips?

And thou may not even have a nodding acquaintance with her. Yet doth that uncomfortable feeling beset thee. Thou wonderest if thy nose is shiny, whether thy petticoat is peeping out beneath the hem of thy skirt, whether there is any smudge on thy cheek or thy hat is on awry.

Yea, in this way doth the cat achieve her victory. Yet it is far worse when thou knowest the cat, when she is part and parcel of thy social life, for then she can make her cattiness even more felt. She it is who never faileth to tell thee thy dress is pretty, but—or when thou art busily engaged in trying to interest a young man, she will sidle up to thee and demand an introduction and thereafter monopolize his attention until thou feelest that thou could tear her to pieces.

Thou art by then nervous, and thou beginnest to fidget, and thy escort then wondereth what in the world can be the matter with thee. Then he bethinketh himself of the other, and he bemoaneth the fact that thou art not as self-possessed as she.

But do not worry lest she grab him off. For a cat will always betray herself. Tho she may be able to attract a man's eyes unto her face and smiling lips for a little while, then he may think her a cute trick, her sins will find her out. Some day she will display her secret, nasty habit of criticising and sneering at all other women to him, and he will flee as from a deadly plague.

I have spoken,

Adieu.

K. Y. Wayfarer

PROF. SMITH TO ADDRESS IMPORTANT MEETING

Prof. John F. Smith has just received a call from the New York office of the Recreation and Playground Association of America to deliver the opening address at the meeting of the National Congress next month.

Probably Had

He—Haven't I seen you somewhere sometime?

She—Oh, very likely. I was there at the time you mentioned.

THE FAILURE

DM we but stand alone in that man's place,
Had we but trod the path wherein he fell,
Had known the cares of life that lie his face,
And dim his eyes and darken soul as well,
Perhaps then we would wish for caverns deep,
That we might pass within to silent sleep.
If we had seen what snare beset his way,
What dreams of youth had into darkness passed,
That felt the tempter's lure, our reason sway,
Or seen life's dearest hopes caught in the blast,
Might we not then, with weakness, sin and fall,
And pray that darkness come and cover all?
Much better with kind words we light his way,
For budded in that soul perhaps may be
Thoughts that will blossom into life one day,
And fill some lonely heart with melody,
Let's not, with mocking sneers, his hopes appall:
Perchance we, too, along life's way may fall.

—W. H. Gilliland, in Kansas City Times.

ABOUT LIMIT IN EFFICIENCY

Canadian Inventor's Device Provides Power Which Even the Oldest Person May Generate.

Efficiency experts have long lamented the waste of energy involved when a dog wags its tail. They should be pleased with a remarkable invention of J. T. Lemire of Maskinonge, Can.

His invention would appeal even more to lazy men than to efficiency experts. It consists of a machine actuated by a rocking-chair which generates enough power to run washing machines, sewing machines, electric fans, etc. A factory to manufacture this device will be built at Sorel, Quebec.

Lemire's invention is a pleasant transformation of the old-time tread-mill. Those familiar with the law of conservation of energy will smile at it. However, rocking in a chair is more pleasant than running on a treadmill, even if the operator only imagines that he is not working.—Cleveland News-Leader.

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

Historic Home Abandoned.
Harpers, the famous publishing house in Franklin square, is to abandon the ground it has held for nearly a century. Through its quaint wrought iron portals have passed the most famous writers of England and America. The firm is to occupy new quarters at Camden, N. J. If ever a spot in old New York could echo with the footsteps of countless vanished celebrities as did the ancient street corner in the "Tale of the Two Cities" with the phantom feet of an unseen mob, that spot would be the doorway of the old Harper publishing house. The official title of the firm was and is "Harper & Bros." Some person asked one which was Harper. "Any one of us is Harper and the other two are the brothers," was the reply.—New York World.

Rabbit and Sheep Comrades.
An Ontario reader of the Montreal Family Herald says he had a large white rabbit given him this winter by a neighbor. He had no place to put it, so he made a pen to the sheep house for it. The rabbit was kept there for about a week, then it was left in with

JUNIOR AGRICULTURAL CLUBS

Silver Creek Junior Agricultural Club met last Wednesday night, September 6, and rendered a very interesting program. The entire program was conducted by the club. Arrangements were made for a club picnic with two other clubs invited. Committees were appointed and the announcement of the picnic date will be known later.

The County Agent was present and emphasized the importance of completing their record books.

Lone Star Workers Junior Agricultural Club met Saturday night September 9, for the purpose of an ice cream supper. The proceeds of which go to help pay the expenses of Starns Freeman, one of the members of the Junior Live Stock Judging Team, to the State Fair, Louisville. All the cream candy and cake was sold. Everybody seemed to enjoy the evening.

The County Agent explained the Junior Live Stock Judging Team and also reported what Madison County clubs have done in eight years.

The Lone Star Workers club is very active with Mr. L. L. Campbell as leader.

This club is the home of the State President of Junior Agricultural Clubs association, and is very proud of the fact that the State President, Starns Freeman, is to represent them in the judging team at Louisville.

Willing Workers of Dixie Highway Junior Agricultural Club had a very successful ice cream supper last week making a nice little sum, which is to be used for the promotion of club work in the community.

This club is one of the biggest clubs in the county and has a membership of 40 members and is doing excellent work under the leadership of Mrs. M. A. Moody. Mrs. Moody is also teacher in the same district. Mrs. Moody is working hard with her club and will lead them to a successful end.

Conway Junior Agricultural Club put on an excellent program two weeks ago which was enjoyed by the entire community. This club is a very active club under the leadership of Miss Rosa Dalton. The club is planning for the School and Agricultural Fair. Other clubs are conducting meetings, holding ice cream suppers, pie suppers, etc., throughout Rockcastle and Madison counties. The programs are fine. Their work is being recognized by many.

WALLACETON

Squirrel's Surgery Effective.

Some New Brunswick schoolboys trapped a squirrel some time ago. Its skin and the flesh of its legs were cut through to the bone by the trap. The little animal was put into a cage and given some balsam boughs to play with. A schoolteacher happened to pass by the squirrel's cage. She stopped to look at it and observed it pick some balsam from the boughs and apply it to its sore foot. The teacher was interested in the little prisoner and stopped to see it every day, and the squirrel treated its foot in the same manner. When the hurt was completely cured the boys gave it its liberty and it scampered off as quickly as though it had never been injured.

Interesting Find.

Two local Hollander explorers a hole eight feet in circumference and 200 feet deep in an open field recently found a network of passages containing vast numbers of unmummified remains of animals and birds in an extraordinary state of preservation, reports a dispatch from Johannesburg, South Africa.

The passages discovered were of many sizes and some of the fissures are estimated to be 500 feet high.

Zoologists here are unable to offer any conjecture as to the origin of the specimens found.

The Epicure.

"It isn't that, but I don't want the aroma of this camembert I'm eating to be blown away."

Even as He Is Pure.

Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him;

for we shall see Him as He is.

And every man that hath this hope in purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

1 John 3:2-3.

Not Afraid.

I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord sustained me. I will not be afraid of ten thousand people.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 17

THE MESSAGE OF MALACHI

LESSON TEXT—Mal. 3:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of Hosts. Mal. 3:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—II Kings 17:21-22; Ezek. 23:17; Acts 20:35; II Cor. 8:13-15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Promise of the Savior's Coming.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Offerings That Please God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Should Give to God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the Bible Teaches About Giving.

The subject of today's lesson is broader than the text, especially the verses printed. The best way to teach this lesson is to give a survey of the entire book.

Malachi was perhaps contemporary with Nehemiah; probably substituted the same relation to Nehemiah that Haggai and Zechariah did to Zerubbabel. After the completion of the walls of Jerusalem Nehemiah seems to have been called back to the Persian court, but returned to Jerusalem after a few years. Though outwardly the lives of the people were correct, the prophet pointed out the sin of a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages and a failure to pay tithes.

I. Israel's Base Ingenuity (1:1-5).

God approached them with the tenet affirmation "I have loved you." It was the prophet's burden to declare this fact unto them (v. 1). So formal and worldly were the people that they failed to see God's hand upon them. The attitude of Israel to God is shown in the skeptical question "Wherein hast Thou loved us?" The prophet answers this by showing God's choice of Jacob and His passing by Esau; His destruction of Edom and saving Israel.

II. God's Severe Indictment (1:6-21).

1. Against the Priests (1:6-9). They were guilty (1) of profanity (1:6). Their profanity was in despising the name of God. To fail to honor God is to be profane. To use His name in any irreverent way is to be thus guilty. (2) Sacrilege (v. 7, 8). Their sacrilegious act was in offering polluted bread and blighted sacrifices. This brings such offerings to an earthly ruler would be a gross insult. Gifts to be acceptable with God must be genuine; must cost something. We should give to God our best. There is no贿赂 too brilliant to offer in the Lord's service. The young should not esteem their lives wasted who offer them on the altar of missionary sacrifice. (3) Greed (1:8). They were not willing to open the doors of God's house without pay. Our service should be out of a heart of love for God, not for profit. This has a vital application to ministers and evangelists today. To enter Christian service because of worldly gain is of this type. (4) Weariness (1:12, 13). Because of lack of interest in the routine became irksome. (5) Not teaching the law to the people (2:1-3). Those set apart to teach God's law to the people have a great responsibility and God will most surely demand an accounting.

2. Against the People (2:10-17; 3:7-15). (1) For ungodly marriages (2:11, 12). God's purpose in the prohibition of mixed marriages was that He might raise up holy seed (v. 15). The marriage of the believer with the unbeliever today brings confusion into the fold of God and turns aside His purpose. (2) For divorce (2:13-16). Divorce was the source of great sorrow—even the tears of the wronged woman covering the altar (v. 13). The offerings of a man who had thus treated his wife would be an abomination to God. The tears of wronged women today are going up to God and make even the prayers of some men an abomination to Him. (3) Public wrongs (3:5, 6). (a) Sorcery—magical. Those who practice such things should be regarded as public offenders. (b) Adultery. This is a sin of wider extent than the parties concerned. (c) False swearing. (d) Oppression of the hired hand, widow and fatherless. (e) Turned aside the stranger from his rights. (f) Blasphemy (3:13-15).

III. The Severe Judgments Which Shall Befall the Nation (3:1-5; 1:1-6).

1. By Whom Executed. This is done by the Lord. Judgment has been committed to the Son of God (Acts 17:30-31).

2. Time of Second Coming of Christ.

John the Baptist was the forerunner of His first coming. Elijah shall be the forerunner of His second coming.

3. Result. For the righteous it will be a day of healing and salvation. To the wicked it will be a day of burning and destruction. A book of remembrance is now being kept. A day of retribution is coming.

4. Reward. As good as they were on your automobile as they were on your bicycle.

A List of Vacation Do's and Don'ts for the School Children of America

By SAFETY INSTITUTE OF AMERICA.

Swim all you can this summer, but never on a full stomach, or if overhanded or extremely tired.

Learn to paddle your own canoe, but never rock the boat to scare the other fellow; this has caused the death of thousands of boys and girls.

Fly kites, but don't use copper wire instead of twine; scores of boys have been electrocuted when their kite wire came in contact with electric wires; also don't climb telegraph poles.

Hike out into the country, but if you go for more than one day carry a first-aid kit with you; also learn to recognize poison ivy. Drink a lot of water, but first make sure that its source is clean.

Don't use the streets for play if there is a vacant lot, a clean alley or a playground nearby; if you must use streets for playgrounds pick a street that has no street car tracks or heavy automobile traffic.

Don't be a jay-walker; in the city cross streets at regular crossings, never in the middle of the block; when walking on country roads keep on the left instead of the right-hand side of the road, so that you can see approaching vehicles.

These young people will need encouragement and employment in the kingdom of God. They have enlisted in the army of God and there is no need of idle people in his kingdom. They can do something. God's greatest expectation is willingness. We hope the will do those things which they know to be right.—We are having a good deal of difficulty in securing brick and cement for the cistern at Boftown school, but most all the people in the community are interested in the school and have contributed to date $60.50 and we are safe in saying that we shall have as good a water supply as any school in the county.—Mr. Hudson Powell has completed painting his dwelling house.—Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley Eversole and Mr.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

RAGGED PRACTICE

FRIENDSHIP, the most sacred of all moral bonds, is never appreciated at its full worth until by some unlooked for snap of its golden moorings it takes flight and flies away.

In the excitement of the moment the loss may not be keenly felt, but the loss ride by in their swift chariots, lines mark the face and strands of silver streak the hair, there comes to the loser an inexpressible sense of loneliness which sharply reminds him or her of the glorious sun that has set behind the purple hills.

A friendship which multiplied joys and divided sorrows is gone forever.

As you repeat this word "gone" in the night when you are alone, and again in the morning and at intervals through the day, it comes upon you with a new and terrible meaning.

How gladly you would erase it, but in spite of your oft boasted strength of will, you find in your grief that you cannot do it.

Pride scores as dictator.

Like a beggar you sit on its dry crusts, and go to bed night after night with an ache in your heart and a sting in your conscience.

Yet you keep going crookedly about the hyways and highways of life and continue year after year the ragged practice of unbinding your neck or curving your lips with a friendly smile.

It no longer matters so much how your behavior appears to the glaring eyes of the world, so you persist stubbornly in air your pride and flout it in public places, dropping daily a little lower from the high ideals so sacred to you in the peaceful, halloved days of friendship.

In the background of every picture depicting human unhappiness you will find an ugly blur of color quite at variance with the rules of harmony, caused by a slip of the tongue or a spurt of passionate anger between two persons, communities or nations.

If you will study the blur intensity, you will find that it is the evil thing that destroys peace and strews battlefield with rivulets of blood.

If you have a true friend, give him or her the best of which pure friendship is capable of giving; or if you have quarreled, break the truce and heaven will bless you!

Bobbed Hair an Old Fad.

Bobbed hair and earpuffs were fashionable 2,500 years ago, according to the results of an investigation conducted by students of the University of California, who recently produced "The Vision of Marpessa," a Greek outdoor pageant.

Several of the girls had demurred at taking part because they feared their bobbed locks would not look sufficiently ancient. An investigation was started and the students and their faculty advisors found that the Greek women of centuries ago bobbed their hair, used earpuffs and also resorted to brilliantine and other beauty aids on occasion.

The exposition opens Saturday all over the world, for Charles L. Forbes, director of the Veterans Bureau, to say at a reception in Washington:

"Those unrenovable policies naturally make men think that post-war morality in the business world is more rapacious than prewar morality was."

"It used to be that a man was content to hold his own. Today he insists on holding other people's."

Nature in Freshish Mood.

We are told that a sheep gave birth to twin lambs in Ontario. Not that this is odd, but one of the lambs was big and healthy, while the other was badly deformed. The poor misformed animal lived only about ten minutes; it had two full-grown bodies, one head and eight legs, two front ones, four hind ones and two growing out of its back.—Exchange.

and work. To obviate the bad effect of having many Germans working in France, de Lubersac explains, it was arranged that the greater part of the labor will be utilized in Germany. The German manufacturers of the goods delivered are to have 6 per cent profit. The Socialist press in Germany attacks the whole plan as purely a selfish contract at the expense of the German government and labor, and it estimates Stinnes profits at 45,000,000 marks.

Dr. Hermann, German finance minister, is negotiating with Belgium concerning guarantees for six-month treasury certificates which Germany is to give Belgium in lieu of cash. His difficulty is threefold, for he must satisfy not only the Belgians, but also the German cabinet and German financial and industrial leaders. It seems likely he will have to seek for the guarantees from foreign financiers.

SECRETARY OF STATE HUGHES and his party arrived at Rio de Janeiro, were given an enthusiastic reception and housed in a palace, and on Thursday the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Brazilian independence was inaugurated with impressive ceremonies and patriotic festivities. The centennial exposition is still far from complete but will be opened soon. It is interesting to note that at the presidential reception Secretary Hughes took second place to Mgr. Cherubini, ambassador from the Vatican, because Brazil is a Catholic country. Two immense Vatican guards in red uniforms and gold helmets accompanied the representative of the Pope.

Although the aviators who started from New York for Brazil in the seaplane Sampiero Correia came to grief a few days after the start and their plane was wrecked, they are proceeding on their way in another machine, and are now in Caribbean waters.

ONE eminent American died last week—Rt. Rev. Samuel Fellowes of Chicago, head of the Reformed Episcopal church. He was a veteran of the Civil War, from which he emerged a brevet brigadier general and thereafter he devoted his life to religious, educational and patriotic work of the highest order.

IN THE SHEPHERD'S FIELD

I walked one night in the Shepherd's Field,
The stars in their wonted courses wheeled,
And no new glory the skies revealed—
There was no peace on earth.
But as I climbed the Bethlehem hill
I saw one bend o'er one who was ill
And another bearing coal to fill
A neighbor's scanty hearth,
And I knew that Christ was there.

I walked up the mount a little space,
And crept through the shadows for His face.

But found Him not in the pictured place
Beneath the olive trees.
Then turning toward Jordan in the night
I saw the men on their way to fight.
In Jordan's hall for a thing called Right,
Not hating their enemies—

And I knew that the Christ was there.

CLARICE

WHILE Clarie has its origin in the same root as Clara or Clara, its evolution progressed in a far different manner. The Latin adjective clarus, meaning bright or famous, is of course responsible for both names, but where Clara followed the English and French, Clarie is the product of Italy.

The old Latin feminine of words ending in "lor" to signify the door, was "lx"; in modern Italian this becomes "loa." Clarie, therefore, was the feminine name so evolved and meant "to make famous." It proved popular throughout Italy, its famous bearer probably being the wife of Lorenzo de Medici.

Though France already had a Clarie, she adopted Clarie, giving a soft "s" sound to the "c." This explains the Clartie which sprang up in England and was given extraordinary vogue by Richardson in his novel wherein he made Clartie his heroine. The popularity of this book in France brought forth Clarie. It is not the first instance of one language adopting the change made upon one of its own words by another tongue.

Clardia and Clarmaud are two other fanciful interpretations of the original Clarie.

The diamond is Clarie's talismanic gem. Its potency is best expressed in the old rhyme:

The Evil Eye shall have no power to harm,
Her that shall wear the diamond as a charm,
No man shall attempt to thwart her will,
And e'er the gods her wishes shall fulfill.

Friday is Clarie's lucky day and 1 her lucky number.

Possibly Physician Would Have Been Better Satisfied if the Lady Had Not Apologized.

A certain woman, famous for her philanthropy, used to take an interest

In the various lunatic asylums. On one occasion, during a visit to one of them, she evinced great interest in an elderly man whom she saw strolling about the grounds.

"How long have you been here?" she asked him.

"Twelve years," came the reply.

After a few more questions as to his treatment there, she passed on.

Turning to ask a question of her guide, she noted a smile on his face, and on asking him the reason she was informed that the man she had questioned was no less a person than the medical superintendent.

At once she rushed back to apologize.

"I am so sorry, doctor," she said; "this has taught me a lesson—never to judge by appearances again!"

The man with a short pocket always has a long face.

Modern Girl Has No Heart, No Soul—If She Has She Will Not Admit It

By FRANK X. LEYENDECKER, American Illustrator.

The modern girl has no heart, no soul, no sentiment—if she has she refuses to admit it. You do not dare to talk to the flapper of classics nor of other serious things, for she simply will make no attempt to absorb them. She is idle, frivolous and heedless of tomorrow. However, I will admit that she is charming and often irresistible.

She looks so young, but knows so much—much that she could do well not to know. She assumes no responsibility. She seeks nothing but amusement. When a boy reaches the flapper age he usually has some obligation to fulfill. He gets a job, or else he is branded as a loafer. The girl, however, spends her time reading frothy literature and smoking.

In my opinion the only hope of the nation rests upon the working girl. She has more originality and individuality than the dapper, who looks to us as if she were made from a die. Each working girl has her particular style in clothes and coiffure. But the flapper! How can you tell one from another?

A Man's Creed

A father and his son one winter eve
Sat quietly discoursing on the theme
Which men have questioned since the world began,
Of Death and Immortality, and how
The plan of the Creator is with held
From mortal comprehension. Finally
A silence came, and while they sought for words
Each gazed into the embers dreamily.
The father with assurance in his soul,
The son still searching for a ray unseen.

"I fear death and the future," cried the son.
"Death's shadows are so gloomy, and the pall
That hangs above the paths that lead beyond
Obscures the sight and dims our brightest hope.
I cannot see and know and understand
What things the future holds for mortal man."

"Nay, fear not," said the father, "life is yours
To do the things which Nature's will requires—
To serve your race, to build a character,
And bring some joy to all your fellowmen.
For this your life and strength and mind were given.
Life is not yours to spend in fearful dreams
O'er what the future has or may not have;
'Tis not for us to know, but ours to do!
If heaven has power to make a human life,
It has the power to span the future years
And plan eternal youth for every soul,
And find a lodgment for the life it gives.

Think not of death, which is the earthly end
Of life's activities, but rather plan
How life may best be spent while life is here.
For death is but a step, a link, a phase
Of Nature's process by which worlds are made
And suns are set to move and stars to shine.

It is the portal to that other sphere
Where life unfolds in immortality,
Where hope is realized and God is known,
Nor fret thy mind in musing dreamily
O'er what the future holds in store for man
When life on earth is finished. All the thought
Of all the minds on earth cannot transform
The wise Creator's plans to mortal kind.

The God whose wisdom made us as we are
And set our feet upon the beaten way,
Hath lengthened out our paths to pleasant fields
That spread into the future, and his eye
Hath seen already what we each should have.

It is not ours to see or change or mould,
But to apply our strength, and to attain.
'Tis not for us to worry, but to live,
To keep the faith, to hope, and carry on!"

—John F. Smith

Musical Note.

A very deaf old woman walking along the street saw an Indian turning a peacock's rump. She stood looking at it a while, shook her head, and said: "No, I shant give you any money for such music as that. I can't bear any of the tunes, and besides it smells so if there were something burning inside."—The Congregationalist.

HELPING HIM OUT

"Your cousin's medical practice, I suppose, doesn't amount to much yet?"

"No. We relatives do all we can, but, of course, we can't be sick all the time."
